Greetings to all readers.

This year has been marked with reflection and change. Some days feel good and others feel strange. We all health care professionals living with different prospects of life have always extended helping hands to people suffering from any kind of disease. The Coronavirus pandemic has been devastating, globally. We have faced millions of the obstacles and challenges in overcoming the pandemic and provide the best of services. Though we have lost few lives, the extraordinary efforts provided by health care workers show their commitment and dedication towards their profession.

Since the time corona pandemic is going on, we have been in good shape for providing health care. The government policies of the adoption of early and aggressive measures have added to the achievement. There were no cases from June-Nov 2021.

And with news that a new Covid-19 variant, Omicron, has been identified in South Africa, in Nov 2021, the World Health Organisation designated Omicron a 'variant of concern'. Stringent guidelines are laid by Government of India. Though all workers are fully vaccinated, one has to follow strict guidelines and safety protocols.

I wish this December edition will update the knowledge, skills and approach of the society. We do not need magic to change the world; we carry all the power we need inside ourselves already: we have the power to imagine better. We will get through this and we will find a way to continue on in a safe and responsible manner.
